Rector For 35 Years

Father Meagher Announces on Sunday the Thirty-fifth Anniversary of His Coming to St. Leo's.

From Ridgway Daily Record, July 7th, 1909.

The Rev. Father Meagher, Rector of St. Leo's Parish, announced to the members of his church on Sunday last, that that day was the thirty-fifth anniversary of his pastorate at St. Leo's. During that time Father Meagher has won for himself such a place in the community and in the hearts of his parishoners as to make the anniversary one of real significance.

The Rev. Father Meagher has accomplished practically all of his life work thus far, right here in the local parish. He came here as a young clergyman of twenty-two years of age and for thirty-five years he has been the head and leader of the splendid advancement made by his church during that time.

He was born in Ireland, September 5, 1852. He was educated for the priesthood from his early life, beginning the preparatory studies while yet in Ireland. At the age of nineteen he came to America and entered St. Michael's Theological Seminary, in Pittsburg, where he studied for several years in preparation for the work of the church.

On December 19, 1872, he was ordained a sub-deacon, and about the middle of the following month he was ordained deacon of St. Vincent's College, Westmoreland Co., Pa. The next summer he was ordained priest at the Cathedral of Erie, by Bishop Mullen, and was at once placed in charge of the congregation at Tidioute, Pa. The following December he was sent to Corry, where he became assistant priest in that field.

REV. FATHER MEAGHER,
Rector of St. Leo's Catholic Church, Ridgway, Pa.

While in Corry, Father Meagher was appointed rector of the united parishes of Ridgway and Emporium and in July, 1874, he moved to Ridgway. At this time there was only a score of families living in this place who were of the Catholic faith. In the thirty-five years of his pastorate Father Meagher has been instrumental in building up, from this small beginning, the largest congregation in Ridgway. Previous to the coming of Father Meagher, this mission (formerly known as the Sacred Heart of Mary) was in charge of priests from St. Marys, the Roman Catholic Church having been established at that place at the time Benzinger township was founded, in 1842.

In the year 1867 the erection of a new house of worship was begun and after two years work the old frame church building on Zion's Hill was completed and then sometime afterwards it was considerably enlarged and improved. In 1876 Father Meagher succeeded in having built, near that church, a handsome two-story frame parsonage of ample proportions, which was later used for a convent for the Sisters of the Order of St. Joseph, who have in charge the parochial school.

The present church building was dedicated in September, 1885, and was almost paid for at the time of its completion. The erection of this building, as well as those that preceeded it, were under the direct supervision of Father Meagher, and it was due to his skill in business matters that the building could be carried forward so rapidly and that such good buildings would be erected.

In 1892 the present parsonage was erected under the immediate supervision of Father Meagher. No contract was let for the building, but the materials were purchased and the work was hired independently. It is a handsome structure and one of the finest buildings of its kind in the county.

About five years ago Father Meagher had erected the splendid large brick parochial school building and Convent in Depot street, and again in putting up these buildings he showed his fine business talent.

Besides the great work which he has accomplished here, Father Meagher has been instrumental in the erection of a new $17,000 church edifice in Emporium, where he again assumed personal supervision of the work of building, giving every detail of the labor his careful attention.

Though the material achievements of the local priest have stood out as extraordinary, they have not interfered in the least with the spiritual influence which he has always considered to be the main object of his life. Such things cannot be measured in figures but they are none the less written upon the hearts and lives of his people. The fact that he has completed his thirty-fifth year in St. Leo's Church proves the esteem in which Father Meagher is held by his parishoners.

Rev. Father Meagher does his great work in a modest way, and never seeks notoriety, but rather shuns anything that would savor of egotism or self advertisement on his part. So modest is he, in fact, that he made no attempt whatever to celebrate the anniversary of his long service here, and so quiet had he kept the fact that even his own people were surprised when he made the simple announcement of the anniversary to his people from the pulpit on Sunday last. He is out of town now, and we seize the opportunity of his absence to give him a little write up that he might not permit if he were here.

Another Cameron County Boy Makes Good.

A. Smith Zaner and wife, of Morgantown, W. Va., visited friends in Emporium and Cameron last week. Mr. and Mrs. Z., were formerly residents of Cameron and came up to visit Mr. Z's mother, Mrs. Chester Potter, who is seriously ill. Since moving to Morgantown Mr. Zaner has been elected a member of the city council and the city being 12,000 population the position is one of importance. We congratulate our old friend and at the same time the city of Morgantown in selecting a reliable gentleman, one to be depended upon, to look after their interests.

Liston-Lundin.

James T. Liston and Miss Hulda M. Lundin, two of Winthrop's most popular young people, were married Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lundin. Rev. G. Fleetwood, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, performed the ceremony in the presence of over a hundred relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride was attended by her sister Miss E. Lundin and L. Whitmore of Emporium, Pa., was best man.

Among the friends of the bride and groom present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kline and Miss Lillian Campbell of Emporium, Pa., and Mr. Mrs. Charles Ward of Duluth, Mr. Liston formerly lived at Emporium, Pa., where he was in the employ of the Emporium Powder Company. He gave up his position there to accept a more responsible place with the Pluto Powder Company, which established a plant south of Winthrop some months ago. The bride was reared at Winthrop, and she has many friends both there and in this city. The couple were recipients of a large number of costly and pretty gifts. They will keep house at the location.—Marquette, (Mich.) Journal, July 6, 1909.

E. V. Dunlevie, of Buffalo, who recently operated near Emporium, has erected a large saw mill near Savanaugh, Ga., and will soon commence work on an extensive tract of timber, estimated from seven to eight hundred million feet of pine and oak on a 20,000 tract. Dunlevie is a hustler.

This Sounds Good.

The following press dispatch was sent out from Buffalo on Tuesday night, July 6, and it seems to show a wave of prosperity:

The largest single car order that has been awarded in recent years, representing an expenditure of $5,200,000 has been divided among the Pressed Steel Car company, the Standard Steel Car company, both of Pittsburg, and the American Car and Foundry company, of Butler. The contract calls for 5,200 freight cars for the Harriman lines and the builders have agreed to deliver a large number of the new cars before August 1.

Sent Home.

The remains of Wesley Ethridge, aged 62, who died at Williamsport Hospital several weeks ago, and brought to LaBar's undertaking rooms for embalming, were shipped to a sister of deceased on the third of July, at Cape Briton, N. S. The remains were wonderfully well preserved, after being in the morgue for six weeks, keeping company with "Zeke," the Swede who fell from a lumber wagon, two years ago next September, and taken there for embalming and held for shipment to Sweden. "Zeke" is a perfect mummy and C. W. Rishell, the embalmer, says he can keep the remains until doom's day. It is a wonderful piece of embalming work and is viewed quite often by travelling men.

BIG FIRE AT AUSTIN

Eight Business Houses Destroyed. Loss Over $75.000.

About 3:30 yesterday morning the town of Austin was visited by a destructive fire, eight or nine buildings being destroyed in the business section of the town, entailing a loss of over $75,000. The fire rapidly spread along Goodyear Ave., destroying the Austin Hardware Company, Wolcott's store, Balkeck's furniture store, Walter Warner's jewelry store, Welsh's drug store and residence, Syke's store and the Davis Hotel. The fire is a severe blow to Austin and is the second largest fire to visit that town. twelve years ago the major portion of the town was wiped out. Mr. H. W. Smith, who conducts the New Warner at this place and The Goodyear at Austin hastened to Austin for fear the flames might extend to his hotel, managed by his wife. A number of our citizens hustled for Austin, Andrew Brady skipping over quicker than you could say jack robin, in his auto.

Emporium can deeply sympathize with Austin and we wish we could be of assistance. If we can, call on Emporium.

The Delineator for August.

The Delineator for August contains at article by Gertrude Atherton, in which the writer says many startling things on the subject of "The Present Unrest Among Women." Mrs. Atherton attributes much of the modern discontent to the fact that the law, which gives man the right to woo, still rules the world. Despite economic independence, women, she declares, are not less susceptible than they were formerly to the primitive instinct called romantic love.

Another feature of interest in this number is a symposium on the "The Book the Most Influenced Me," by Edwin Markham, Hamilton W Mabie, Richard Le Gallienne, Clara Barton, and Jeanuette L. Gider.

Mabel Potter Daggett describes the reaction of sentiment on the subject of the Continental Sabbath in an article that will interest persons of all classes. With convincing directness, she describes the work of "Saving Sunday for America." Lovers of good pictures will read with interest "The Art of Mary Cassatt," by Lulu Merrick.

The fiction for August includes two short stories. "To Kellogg's Faam," by George Hibbard, and "Nature" by Juliet Wilber Tompkins. "The Power and the Glory," the new serial by Grace MacGowan Cooke, begins in this number and "Stradella', by F. Marion Crawford, is continued.

The Gentleman.

There are men and women who pride themselves upon their gruffness, and though they may possess virtue, their manners make them intolerable. The finest gentleman that ever breathed was the model man of Nazareth. And if Christianity has no higher recommendation, Hare's statement in "Guesses of Truth," "the Christian is God Almighty's gentleman," that alone makes it an invaluable element in society.

How Women May Keep Well.

An authority upon all matters connected with physical training says that a woman who wishes to keep well and in good condition should sleep nine hours of the 24, take cold water baths, exercise for five minutes each day with light dumbbells, drink a cup of hot liquid before breakfast, spend half an hour every day in outdoor exercise, make the best of bad bargains and, above all, always keep her temper.

A Conservative.

"Your great trouble," said the sagacious person, "is that you don't apply scientific principles to agriculture." "P'raps," answered Farmer Corntossel. "What, in your opinion, cause so many crop failures?" "I dunno for sure. But I've a suspicion it's tryin' to follow the advice of everybody that comes along an' says he knows all about it."

Turpentine.

Turpentine, in India, is derived from the chir, or long-leaf pine, which very much resembles the American long-leaf pine, from which the main supply of turpentine of the world is derived and which is rapidly disappearing. This tree occurs in different parts of the Himalayas, at elevations of from 3,500 feet to 7,000 feet.

Following Our Women.

Aristotle says: "The aim of labor is rest." He never knew New Yorkers, for they rest like the chicken hawk—upon the wing. The man who keeps up with the New York woman ought to have as many legs as a centipede and the temper of an angel.—New York Press.

Strength of Beetles.

Beetles possess an enormous amount of strength. The common beetle can draw 500 times its own weight, and a stag beetle has been known to escape from underneath a box on which a weight had been placed 1,700 times greater than the insect's body.

Getting Rich.

"How did you get the money to buy paints to finish your big picture?" asked the sympathetic intimate of the struggling artist. "Pawned my coat." "Oh! And how much did you get for your picture?" "Nearly enough to get my coat out."

Pagan Philosophy.

"If you wish for anything which belongs to another, you lose that which is your own," said Epictetus. He was a slave, but, more clearly than any of the stoics, realized the essential importance of every human being.

Useful.

"Life is largely made up of illusions," said the complacent cynic. "Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "and they serve a beneficent purpose. If there were no illusions, there would be far less self-esteem."

Good Thing to Avoid.

"When you comes to figure in de loss of time, temper an' mebbe friendship," said Uncle Eben, "it's mighty hard foh anybody to say foh certain dat he has had de best of an argument."

Ability.

LET VOTERS DECIDE

WASHINGTON STAR ON THE PROPOSED INCOME TAX.

Republican Organ Urges That the Question Be Submitted to the People—Public Sentiment Has Not Been Expressed.

In discussing the proposed income tax the Washington Star says:

By the president's plan we should get a clear expression from the people as to an income tax. No campaign has as yet developed public sentiment distinctly on that subject. It is true that last year the Democratic party declared for the tax, while the Republicans were silent. But the election did not turn in any measure on that issue. Other issues occupied attention, and Judge Taft's success rested upon them. The income tax was of no force in the contest.

This is made very plain now by the situation in the senate. The Republican members of that body who favor an income tax, and would be glad to vote for it to-day without special instructions from the country, are not new converts. They held their present views last year, but of course did not express them. Standing on the Chicago platform, they addressed themselves in their campaign speeches to the questions grouped in that instrument.

Nor, although the Denver platform carried the issue approvingly, did the Democratic spellbinders lay any stress on it. Other things occupied their time, and brought out what strength their party exhibited at the polls. Mr. Bryan was not defeated because of his advocacy of an income tax.

But by submitting the question to the states we should ascertain precisely what the voters desire. The issue will not be obscured or subordinated, but will stand out in its full meaning and proportions. Yes, or no, will be the response.

It is predicted that the campaign will be marked by extraordinary corruption. As the friends of the tax must show a strength of three-fourths, its enemies will be able to concentrate their efforts and invest huge campaign funds where they will be most effective. We may probably expect a liberal use of money, but it is not likely that money will carry the day.

If the tax is approved in the way proposed, will the power be reserved, or exercised at once? Will the corporations tax be repealed, and the income tax substituted? The question is pertinent and important.

But no answer is possible now. A campaign might follow with such a proposition as the issue. Something will depend on how the corporation tax works. If it proves a good revenue producer, and no very unpopular exemptions appear, the people may decide to continue it. But a disappointment in it might result in its overthrow, and the adoption of the other tax.

The main thing at present is the submission of the income tax to the voters. As yet no mandate for such a tax has been issued by them, and the party in power should not act in so important a matter until distinctly instructed.

The Prosperity Schedule.

Tariff bills are judged, after enactment, by their results more than by the rates which they establish. The prosperity schedule is the one most interesting to the country. Nine voters out of ten are little concerned with tariff percentages, but all of them are intensely alive to the good or bad times which follow the passage of a new tariff law.

It is never possible to argue successfully that the tariff should not be credited with prosperity or charged with a panic, if such a disaster follows a sweeping reduction or increase in the duties or imports. The change, favorable or adverse, may be a coincidence, but it is always believed to be a consequence, and the new tariff law is judged accordingly.

This may not be scientific. It is not always fair or sound. Yet the fact remains that such reasoning is well nigh universal. It springs from the very roots of human nature.

In the last analysis, the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill will be judged by the times which follow its enactment. If its prosperity schedule turns out well all of its faults will be overlooked and it will be a popular law. Its results will count a great deal more than its merits, if the two do not happen to be well balanced.

The Aviators.

A Nebraska man fell 3,500 feet and survived it. A certain other Nebraskan has fallen even farther not only once, but three times, and appears to be healthier than ever.

The Democratic editor who has asked Mr. Bryan to step down and give some one else a chance at the presidential nomination evidently is not well acquainted with the gentleman from Nebraska.

Using His Deaf Ear.

Mr. Taft can well afford to turn a deaf ear to the unwise party managers who ask him to make the federal judiciary in North Carolina or in any other state a party agency—an instrument for the strengthening of a political organization.

In Current Terms.

"Mr. Bryan rapidly is degenerating to the minor leagues," remarks the St. Paul Pioneer Press. Nice talk about a manager who is planning on capturing the 1912 pennant.

FOLLOW THE TRAIL OF GUILT.

Officials and Employes Implicated in Sugar Frauds Must Be Found and Punished.

The daily press records the slow but steady efforts of the department of justice to prosecute those officials and employes of the so-called sugar trust who were implicated in that enormous fraud upon the national treasury which has become known as "The Case of the Seventeen Holes."

It is to be hoped that this prosecution will be pushed unremittingly, that it will reach as far up among the officials of the offending corporation as it is possible to follow the trail of guilt, and that in every case of conviction the penalties imposed shall be as severe as the law warrants.

It should be possible to follow the trail of guilt clear to the top. It is often true that the subordinates of a great corporate business violate the law for their own advantage, without the knowledge or approval of their responsible superiors. But it is also true that the superiors are often so curiously blind to profitable lawbreaking that their guilt also must be inferred.

In this "Case of the Seventeen Holes"—so named from the mechanical device by which scales were made to show false weights to the profit of the corporation and the loss of the treasury—the crimes committed required the co-operation of so many persons, were so persistent and long-continued, that it is simply impossible to believe they were not known and approved by the responsible heads of the corporation.

In fact, the conclusive proof, that not only the machinery for crime existed, but that crimes were regularly and habitually committed and their profits secured, was found in the corporation's own daily records of its business and in the summaries of those records prepared by order of its superior officials for their information, regularly laid before them and necessarily considered by them.

Hence it should not be impossible to follow the trail of guilt clear to the top, to obtain all necessary legal proof, and by severe punishments to make an example that may be really deterrent to corporation lawbreaking.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The South and the President.

No southern man expects the president, grounded as he undoubtedly is in Republicanism, to sacrifice his faith in order to curry favor with the south. The south would hardly respect him if he did.

The south, however, asks only one thing of the president, and that is, that in making official selections he choose the men most qualified, whether they be Democrats or Republicans. Especially do they expect him to do this in the matter of judicial appointments. If capable Republicans can be found for such positions in the south, southern Democrats will expect and approve their appointment. If, on the other hand, the president's party is devoid of the right material, they naturally hope for the appointment of men of their political faith. It is important that judicial positions be filled by the most capable men in the several districts and circuits, because the judicial officer stands in a different light toward the people to the occupant of a merely political office.

President Taft is showing appreciative consideration of the south and its interests, but he will not be any the less a Republican because of it.—Nashville Republican.

Five Billions of Confidence.

On the fifth day of June the aggregate market value of 374 stock issues representing big corporations—railroads, industrial companies and mining properties — was $4,977,656,864 above the market value of the same stocks when the panic was at its worst, in November, 1907.

This huge gain of almost five billion dollars is not all renewed confidence. It is not all a state of mind. Many great companies have increased their actual possessions very largely in the last year and a half. But if all of the companies in business, throughout the country, could be taken into account the gain in market value would not be $5,000,000,000 but at least $6,000,000,000; perhaps $7,000,000,000.

Therefore it is safe to say that in the brief period from the late fall of 1907 to the early summer of 1909 there has been a gain of $5,000,000,000 in the market value of corporations, which means confidence, new and healthful optimism, a revival of faith in America, a surer and deeper conviction that J. Pierpont Morgan was right when he said that the man who bets against this country's prosperity and progress would "go broke."

Only One in Captivity.

According to a Constantinople letter the new sultan of Turkey is a typical Democrat. Why can not the Democratic party bring him over and elect him to the United States senate from some reliably Democratic state—say Texas or Florida—so that the party and the country can see what one looks like?—New Bedford Standard.

With apparently no one but the Hon. Joseph Weldon Bailey to represent the principles, the economic policies and the honor of the Democratic party, one becomes conscious of the recent awful mortality among the great Democrats.

It was to be expected that prominent Democrats would claim credit for furnishing suggestions to this administration, as well as to its predecessor.

OIL KING AGAIN OPENS HIS PURSE

GIFT OF $10,000,000 IS PRESENTED TO THE GENERAL EDUCATION BOARD.

APPROPRIATIONS EXHAUSTED

Large Income to Meet Educational Needs of Great Importance Had Become Necessary by the Board.

New York City.—John D. Rockefeller has increased his donations to the General Education board by a gift of $10,000,000 and has also released the board from the obligation to hold in perpetuity the funds contributed by him. The gift, announced by Frederick T. Gates, the chairman of the board, brings Mr. Rockefeller's donations to the General Education board to $52,000,000. It was contributed, according to the statement made by Chairman Gates, because the income of the present fund available for appropriation had been exhausted and a large income to meet educational needs of great importance had become necessary.

Mr. Rockefeller's action in empowering the board and its successors to distribute the principal of funds contributed by him upon the affirmative vote of two-thirds of its members was said to have been taken in consideration of the possibility, now remote, that at some future time the object and purpose of the Rockefeller foundation might become obsolete. Under the original conditions imposed, the fund would have had to continue in perpetuity, irrespective of whether a public demand for its continuance existed or not.

Since the receipt of its foundation for higher education in 1905 the General Education board has subscribed to the colleges of this country, $3,937,500. The colleges to which these subscriptions have been made are to raise supplemental sums amounting to $14,037,500. When these agreements have been completed the total addition to collegiate endowment in this country, through the agency of the board and the friends of the colleges, will be $17,975,000. Thus far but one institution has failed to raise the supplemental fund required by the terms of the board's pledge.

In acknowledging Mr. Rockefeller's gift, the board says among other things that they will endeavor to use the power that Mr. Rockefeller has given them for the public welfare.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR CROPS

Iron and Steel Trade Rapidly Rising to High Water Mark Levels, Says Dun's Report.

New York City.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

No one can now question the substantial character of the revival in the iron and steel trade which is rapidly rising to high water mark levels. The output of the principal producer has already reached within a moderate percentage of full capacity, and railroads as well as builders in leading branches of construction work are in the market with their orders.

This wonderful change, in a short period, in the activity of the greatest manufacturing industry of the country; the bright outlook for the crops, that of corn giving promise of an unprecedented yield; the cheapness of money; and the fact that the tariff bill has been passed by the senate; these are the conspicuous features of the business situation. Naturally they serve to strengthen the new born confidence and to encourage new enterprises. The maintenance of trade revival is all the more remarkable because this is the usual season of crop uncertainty.

DISFIGURED GIRL HYSTERICAL

Woman Is Arrested Charged With Throwing Carbolic Acid and Cutting Girl With Knife.

Lexington, Ky.—Mrs. Kate Phipps has been arrested charged with disfiguring Mary Ryan, a girl who was mysteriously attacked in a stable. The girl's identification of the woman was dramatic.

Mrs. Phipps is a neighbor of the girl's and during the latter's delirium has called frequently to inquire about the girl's condition. Miss Ryan was in her right mind when Mrs. Phipps called. On sight of Mrs. Phipps the girl screamed and became hysterical. Miss Ryan declared that the woman who attacked her said as she made the onslaught:

"If I can't have rosy cheeks, you can't. Everybody likes you; nobody likes me." She then threw carbolic acid in her face and cut her with a knife on the cheeks and hands. Mrs. Phipps says she did not make the attack.

Murder or Suicide Pact?

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Escaping gas led to the finding of the dead bodies of Warren C. Rolland, 29, and his wife in a house in which they had recently conducted a rooming house but from which they had removed nearly all of their effects. There were indications of blood stains around the room but the bodies were so badly decomposed that it was difficult to determine whether the woman had been murdered by her husband or whether they had united in a death pact.

CADET LIFE AT WEST POINT

By EDWARD B. CLARK

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY W.A. PATTERSON

SETTING-UP DRILL

WASHINGTON.—Congress almost every year has before it the case of some West Point cadet who allowed his animal spirits to get the better of him, and who under the impulse of the moment committed some act of hazing or of another kind of a discipline breach, and therefore suffered dismissal. The life at West Point is a hard one, and each successive board of visitors is likely to make some suggestion to make the cadet's condition just a little more irksome. Just now there is speculation on the subject of what the official visitors of the year of grace, 1909, will recommend as an addition to the academy's code of discipline.

Sometime ago a clergyman of the Church of England visited West Point. He wished to get full knowledge of the drill, the system of study and the disciplinary methods of the institution, and so he rose at reveille and made the cadet day his own, until taps had sent the stripling soldiers to their blankets.

The clergyman, after seeing lights out, went to the officers' mess and there in response to a question from the superintendent of the academy, he summarized his opinion of the day's duties of the cadets by paraphrasing the remark of the Frenchman on one of the Crimean battlefields: "It's magnificent, but it's a beastly grind."

PHYSICAL DRILL UNDER ARMS

Lord Roberts not long ago declared that the United States school on the Hudson is the greatest military institution in the world. The hero of Kandahar doubtless had made some study of the records and of averages, for history shows that in the number of soldiers entitled to be called great, West Point has turned out more than all the military schools of the continent combined.

Obedience and discipline are the foundation stones of the success of a soldier, according to all the authorities who judge solely by results obtained. Disobedience of orders means dismissal from the military academy. Disobedience of direct orders is a thing practically unknown at the school. Infractions of regulations may in a sense be termed disobedience, but they are never so regarded in any of the world's schools. Boy nature would needs be remade if the rules of any institution were to be kept to the letter of the law.

Discipline at West Point is rigid to severity. As far as disciplinary methods are concerned the school never changes. It is the same to-day as it was in the days of Grant and Lee.

Take a day at the academy and compare its duties with those of any other institution, no matter of what country, and it will be seen that in comparison to the cadets' labor the work of students at other schools is but play. During certain months of the year there is little play at West Point. Drill in the open air gives the requisite exercise to keep the physique right, and for recreation apparently there is no need.

The routine has changed a little with the passing years, but in a general way the day's program at the academy is like this:

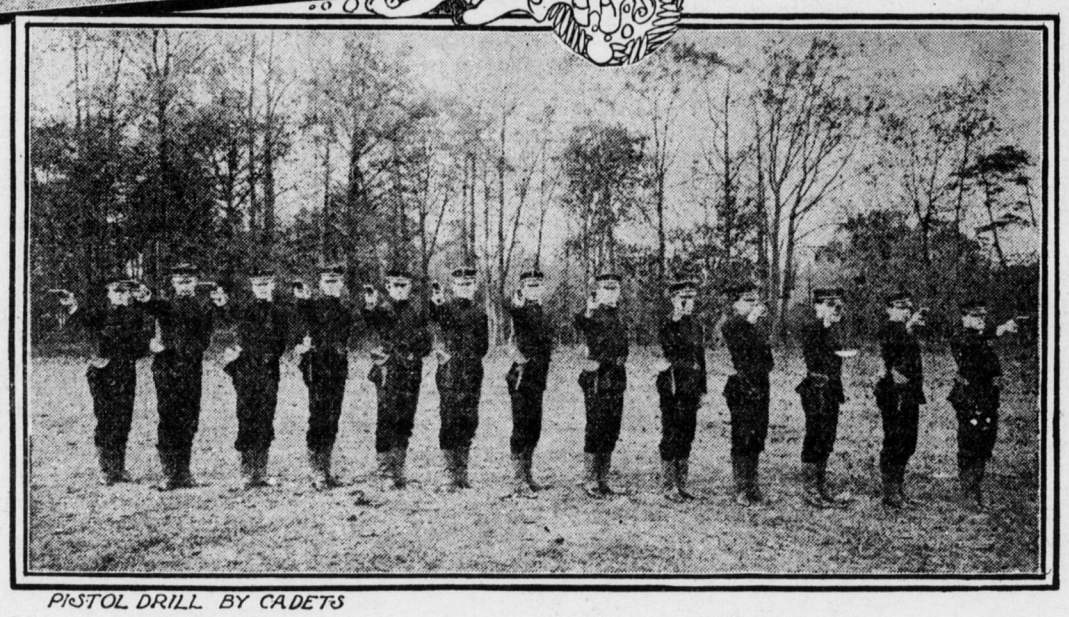
Reveille at 6 o'clock; roll call at 6:20; breakfast at 6:25; guard mount at 7:15; recitations and study hours from 8 until 1; dinner, 1 until 1:40; recitations and study from 2 until 4; drill from 4 until 5:20; parade at 5:30; supper at 6; study from 7 until 9:30; tattoo, then taps and sleep.

There are no recitations at the United States military academy on Saturday afternoons, and the cadets are given what is called "release from quarters," with permission to visit one another in barracks or to roam about the reservation, taking good care, under pain of dismissal, to keep from going off limits.

Release from quarters never comes for some cadets. The breaking of some small rule means confinement to quarters or the walking of extra guard tours. The boy who unwittingly puts on a pair of white trousers having an iron rust stain on them, and wears them at drill or at dress parade, will know no release from quarters for days.

Should a speck of rust be found on his rifle at Sunday morning inspection, he will shoulder that rifle and walk two or more hours up and down the area of barracks as a "sentinel without charge," while his more fortunate comrades are experiencing the ecstasy which comes from permission to ramble about the parade ground and to view the hotel and other delights of civilization from a distance.

Upon occasion the cadets are given permission to call upon friends at the little hotel on the reservation. If, however, a boy commits the enormous offense of leaving the main parlor of the hotel to visit his father or mother in another room, and the act should be discovered, he will never see the inside of that hotel again until many weeks have rolled by and he has expiated his crime by many extra tours of guard duty in the broiling sun or zero weather or a Highland winter.



PISTOL DRILL BY CADETS

In an elder day at the academy, and it may be so to-day, the mail bag into which the cadets dropped their letters was hung with wide distended mouth just inside the door of the guardhouse. Until the first call for breakfast, the guardhouse was "off limits." The instant the drums rolled the cadets could enter the building and drop their letters. One morning a cadet stood without the door, holding his letter in his hands. The drummer's sticks were poised tremblingly, waiting to fall for the pounding out of the first call for breakfast.

The cadet saw the poised sticks, entered the guardhouse and dropped his letter just as the first note of the call sounded. He had passed through the doorway just one-sixteenth of a second too soon. An officer saw him mail his letter and a report of "off limits" went in which caused the unfortunate letter mailer to perform extra guard duty for 16 long hours—not consecutive hours, however.

On the first hook on the wall of his alcove the cadet must hang one specific article of clothing; on the second hook another article, and so on. If, perchance, the youth hangs his dresscoat on the nail sacred to the overcoat, he can bid farewell to release from quarters for two Saturdays at least, and if, perchance, the shell jacket hangs on the hook given over to trousers, he may add three more days of confinement to those which have accrued from the crime of the misplaced overcoat.

The methodical cadet runs a yardstick along the toes of the extra shoes which under regulation, must be placed in regular order beneath the foot of his bed. If the toe of one shoe protrudes half an inch beyond the toe of its mate, the cadet gets one demerit mark. If more than one pair of shoes shows symptoms of irregularity in the matter of toeing the scratch, the cadet will receive a sufficient number of demerit marks to enable him to realize thoroughly the beauties of a right line as applied to something besides geometry.

It is "a beastly grind," as the English clergyman said, but it is a grind that has its uses, and the proof of it is written in all the records of the service.

Hazing is in a sense an hereditary habit. The army officers who have been asked in the years that are past, and who are being asked to-day to root out the practice of "deviling" the plebe at West Point, did not, and have not all of them their hearts in the work, for were they not hazed themselves, and were they not in turn hazers? Nine out of ten of the hazed will tell you to-day that they profited by the experience.

When Gen. Ulysses Simpson Grant entered plebe camp, a first classman who noticed the boy's strong build intimated to him that it would be a pleasure to have him call immediately at the senior's tent. Grant went. There is a rule at West Point, which was a rule in Grant's day as well, that any cadet who asks another to perform any menial work for him shall be dismissed from the service. The first classman knew too much to ask his visitor outright to do anything of the kind, but here is the way which veracious academy history says that he went at it:

"I presume, Mr. Grant, that you have lived on a farm, and such being the case you undoubtedly have had rare opportunities to note the effect of the sun's rays on certain objects. Now, if you had left in the sun a water bucket that was innocent of the retention of a single drop of the fluid, what do you think, sir, would have been the particular effect of the sun upon that particular water bucket?"

"I think," said Cadet Grant, "that it would get warped and leaky."

"Very well, Mr. Grant; you show erudition beyond your years. Now if you will look at my water bucket you will see that it is as dry as a chip. By the further exercise of your knowledge and observation, Mr. Grant, can you tell me by what means I may prevent the warping and leaking of my bucket?"

"Have it filled," said Grant.

"Very good, again, Mr. Grant; but pray note what you said: 'have it filled,' not 'fill it.' That necessarily means, Mr. Grant, that some one must fill it for me. You have shown so much acumen that I fear to violate the terms of your prescription either in letter or in spirit, which I should do if I presumed to carry the bucket to the water tank myself."

Grant filled the bucket.

A member of the West Point class of 1870, now an officer of high rank in active service, tells this story about the first day in plebe camp of Frederick Dent Grant, son of Ulysses.

An upper classman, bent on nothing else than having some fun with the son of the famous general, asked him on his advent into camp while he was still wearing the clothes of civil life: "Which do you think is the greatest man, Gen. George Washington or Gen. Ulysses S. Grant?"

Fred's answer, blunt and quick, was: "Washington may have been the greater man, but my father was the greater soldier."

"Mr. Grant," said the upper classman, "to compare your father to George Washington in any sense, is like unto the comparing of a plucked hen to the American eagle."

Then there followed a fight, but it was stopped almost instanter by some first classmen because the place was too public.

Gen. John M. Schofield was an artillery officer. The army has it that Schofield had a distaste for the infantry branch because of an experience which he underwent during his first week as a plebe at the military academy.

Some yearlings chased Schofield up a ladder from the cock loft of barracks to the roof. The future hero of Franklin was clad only in a night shirt. When the rof was reached the cadets gave Schofield a rifle, marked out a sentinel's beat on the tin roof and started the future artilleryman on his walk back and forth with the musket on his shoulder. They kept him at it with few intermissions, from taps to reveille.

Edgar Allan Poe was a cadet at West Point only for a short time. Army tradition holds nothing concerning the hazing of Poe. The academy, however, is the custodian of one of Poe's first poems, which is nothing short of a striking example of the boy's wit.

While Poe was at the academy Lieut. Joseph Lock was stationed there as a tactical officer. Lock was the strictest kind of a disciplinarian, and he was constantly reporting Poe for offenses, reports which brought as their natural consequence some heavy punishments. Poe had his revenge in a poem which the curious may find in a volume called "Tic Tacs," which was published years ago by the cadets:

John Locke was a great name,
Joe Lock is a greater. In short,
The former is well known to fame,
The latter well known to report.

There is, or was, one form of hazing at West Point which has in it the essence of cruelty. This consists in making a plebe read with appropriate gestures and the proper inflections, all the nice things which the newspapers of his home town printed about him when the announcement of his appointment to a cadetship was made. Imagine, if you will, the feelings of a green youngster, as he stands upon a barrel, reading to an assemblage of possibly 50 yearlings, the editorial statement of the local papers, that Henry Smith "doubtless will be made a corporal as soon as the eyes of the superintendent of the military academy fall upon his tall and manly figure. Henry has in him the making of a great soldier. We shall hear of his deeds on the field of battle as a leader of his country's hosts in case dread war shall come."

HERE'S THE POINT

If you are a business man, did you ever think of the field of opportunity that advertising opens to you? There is almost no limit to the possibilities of your business if you study how to turn trade into your store. If you are not getting your share of the business of your community there's a reason. People go where they are attracted—where they know what they can get and how much it is sold for. If you make direct statements in your advertising see to it that you are able to fulfill every promise you make. You will add to your business reputation and hold your customers. It will not cost as much to run your ad in this paper as you think. It is the persistent advertiser who gets there. Have something in the paper every issue, no matter how small. We will be pleased to quote you our advertising rates, particularly on the year's business.

MAKE YOUR APPEAL

to the public through the columns of this paper. With every issue it carries its message into the homes and lives of the people. Your competitor has his store news in this issue. Why don't you have yours? Don't blame the people for flocking to his store. They know what he has.

The Home Paper Gives you the reading matter in which you have the greatest interest—the home news. Its every issue will prove a welcome visitor to every member of the family. It should head your list of newspaper and periodical subscriptions.

Enlarging Your Business

If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in haphazard fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?

Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.

Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 50 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.

If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.

We will be pleased to have you call on us, and we will take pleasure in explaining our annual contract for so many inches, and how it can be used in whatever amount that seems necessary to you.

If you can sell goods over the counter we can also show you why this paper will best serve your interests when you want to reach the people of this community.

JOB PRINTING We can do the finest class of printing, and we can do that class just a little cheaper than the other fellow. Wedding invitations, letter heads, bill heads, sale bills, statements, dodgers, cards, etc., all receive the same careful treatment—just a little better than seems necessary. Prompt delivery always.

Castle Garden Church.

Editor Press:—

You will please insert the amount of money pledged up to date toward the canceling of the debt on the Castle Garden Church. Previously reported, $212.00. Since received from Rev. W. A. Hazlett, Houghton, N. Y., $2.00; Wm. Wylie, $10.00; Leonard Fowler, Laceyville, Pa, $1.00; Hon. Lewis Emery, Jr., Bradford, Pa., $50.00 Mr. Emery writes:

MR. J. M. ENGLISH,
Driftwood, Pa.

MY DEAR SIR:—

I have your favor of the 2nd and thank you very much for your kind invitation to be present at the dedicatory services in your new place of worship. I am very glad indeed that you have succeeded in spite of the prophecy of the people in building this church, and that you have but $1,000 debt remaining on the building. It would give me pleasure to be with you on the occasion of the dedication of this church, but I am so pressed with business that I fear that it is impossible for me to leave at present. I think however, that a check for $50.00 which I enclose will be a good representative for me, and one that will do more good for the cause than I could by being personally present.

I sincerely trust that you may be successful in raising the required amount to pay off the debt. and with best wishes for yourself, your family and any friends in your community, I remain,

Yours very truly,
LEWIS EMERY, JR.

After the dedication, a full list of all monies received, with names of doners will be given for publication. A blessed time is anticipated July 17-18. The first service Saturday, two p. m. Other appointments will be announced. J. M. ENGLISH.

EVER WATCHFUL.

A Little Care Will Save Many Emporium Readers Future Trouble.

Watch the kidney secretions.

See that they have the amber hue of health;

The discharges not excessive or infrequent;

Contain no "brick-dust like" sodimont.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this for you.

They watch the kidneys and cure them when they're sick.

Mrs. E. L. Rendt, Fifth St., Emporium, Pa., says: "I suffered from disordered kidneys for years and the secretions were irregular and painful in passage. I also had backache and pains through my loins and was unable to rest at night on account of these annoyances. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I obtained a box from Taggart's drug store and they gave me almost immediate relief. My back does not ache now, I am able to sleep well and the other symptoms have disappeared. I obtained more relief from Doan's Kidney Pills in a short time than from any other remedy I ever used."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Too Happy to Live.

No. But a person who feels so weak and nervous that life seems a burden can be made happy by building him or herself up by the use of Sexine Pills. Price $1 a box, 6 boxes $5. Address or call on R. C. Dodson, Druggist, Emporium, Pa., where they sell all the principal remedies and do not substitute.

FIRST FORK.

W. H. Mitchell, Dentist, Emporium.

John Thilegas who lately returned from the State of Washington has bought the Bowen farm here and taken possession. Queer, ain't it that people from this section should go to the "Garden Spot of the World" and them come back to Potter or Cameron counties, and buy a place and settle down. But they will do it just the same, and this proves the words of the old song true, "There's no Place Like Home."

B. B. Lorshbaugh lost one of his team horses last week.

J. R. Batchelder was up on Saturday and relieved the people of their loose change as the "skin games" at Sinnamahoning, circus day, on Friday. Taxes in this township are higher than for years. Jim is going "down home" (Maine) soon to the re-union of his old regiment but I don't wish to be understood as saying that had anything to do with the taxes being higher.

The prospect of a drouth are pretty good and crops are already beginning to show the effects of it.

Percy Swank killed a large rattler on R. M. Williams' field, where he was putting in buckwheat. The snake had swallowed a rabbit.

The apple crop here is almost a total failure and it is reported that the huckleberry crop is about the same. Some of the earliest fields of potatoes are badly damaged already by the dry weather.

C. E. Logue is getting letters by nearly every mail from parties who want to come and hunt bear when the season opens. It looks now as though he would have his hotel full of hunters.

The man with the prize envelope at the circus found lots of suckers. He raked in $864.00 dollars, a pretty good days work, almost as much as the rest of the show took in. Suckers bite good here.

Our business people ignored our town constable and sent to Driftwood and hired two constables from there to come down on circus day. Well gentlemen that is right, don't employ home talent.

The "Rainy Day" pic-nicers met with quite an exciting time the past week while pic-nicing in Lyman Hollow. A wild animal came out of the woods and some of the merry makers climbed trees, others took to the swamps. We have not heard what kind of an animal it was but by all accounts it must have been a very ferocious beast. They also killed a large rattle snake. They arrived home safely. No one injured but all badly frightened and have decided to picnic at the Indian Rock hereafter.

Agent Pennsy R. R. Rile Prosser, has returned from his vacation. He shows that a rest means much good. He took in the Toronto towns and others of note.

Mr. Beal, of Washington, D. C., takes his vacation here. He is the guest of his old-time friend, Hon. F. D. Councilman.

The ever Glorious 4th and 5th passed off without any eyes or fingers being blown off, but was a characteristic of this place, "very quiet."

The dead-lock on school marms was broken on the 1st inst. by the election of Miss Pearl Lewis as teacher for the ensuing term. It is hoped she will put forth an extra effort to please this peculiar dispositioned school board.

Mr. Ernest Victory, who fell under the cars above Shippen last Saturday, now at Williamsport Hospital, having one foot cut off, is doing well as could be expected. His daughter, Miss Leathie, is with him for a few days.

Mrs. S. H. McCabe, visited among friends yesterday. This excellent lady recalled memories when she lived here over 20 years ago—some were pleasant and some were sad—her husband having died here. "Steve" was foreman for F. H. Goodyear in his lumber yard. Call again.

Dr. H. S. Falk made his debut here last Sunday, being towed in from Austin. Mr. Ludwig helped him through his dilemma, one of the differentials breaking as he was ascending the hill between here and Austin. Doc. is not discouraged with autos. He says they are here to stay.

Chas. Weller had quite an exciting affray last week, when two operators from here crossed his meadow to find his salt water well. Chas. not knowing them supposing them tramps, accosted them as to where they were going. They making no reply, he shouted "git out dare." They not moving rapidly enough he took after them with a club, when they did flee from him. After a exciting chase they landed in the public road. Charlie was asked if he did not know they were second and third trick men here at depot, he said he would learn them tricks before and behind. He says "dey must answer him or dey git it over de het."

Disinfect

Some disinfectants and germicides might be classed as drugs but, you do not want to be drugged just now with a bug killer. However, now is the time to think of getting after the rose bugs and currant worms.

We have a full line of the "remedies" for that class of pests. Also a non-poisonous bed bug exterminator in small cans.

WEDDING AT CASTLE GARDEN

Miss Alice Caroline Jordan and Mr. Leslie Beaver English Were Joined in Matrimony at 8:00 O'Clock, Wednesday Evening, June 30th.

One of the prettiest weddings of June's merry month of wedding bells and roses took place in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Wednesday, June 30th, at 8:00 o'clock, when the marriage of Mr. Leslie B. English and Miss Alice C. Jordan was solemnized. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. F. Hall.

The bride wore a delicate white dress of Persian lawn over white and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and maiden-hair fern and made a charming appearance. She was attended by Miss Muriel Bailey, of Mason Hill, who was gowned in white dotted Swiss over pink and carried a bunch of daisies and maiden hair fern. The groom was dressed in conventional black and was attended by Mr. B. McKimm, Jr. The flower girls were Miss Eula Batchelder and Miss Ruth Ferguson, very neatly dressed in pure white and carried each a bouquet of beautiful roses. It was a most beautiful sight as the company marched down the aisle to the music of the "Crown Prince March," played by Mrs. W. F. Hall, and under a beautiful arch of rhododendrons and ferns, when Rev. W. F. Hall, their pastor, tied the knot and sealed it with a fervent prayer, that we trust shall not be untied until death does the work. He then about faced the company to a large audience that had gathered to witness this grand affair and introduced the dewly wedded pair as man and wife, when the relatives and friends came forward with congratulations and good wishes for a long and happy life. May all their troubles be but little ones.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. English on Castle Garden Heights, when a large company of invited guests partook of the same.

Just as the guests were about to sit down to supper a tramp was heard in the yard and all looking out to see what was the cause of all the noise and there was the Driftwood Band, headed by Chief H. B. Mutthersbaugh. They gave the couple a rousing sernade and after they had played several pieces the bride and groom with the guests came out on the front porch and were introduced by Mr. Hall. Mr. Mutthersbaugh responding in a neat little speech, congratulating the happy couple and ordered three lusty cheers, when the groom handed out a $5.00 William for the benefit of the band, and the bride presented a nice wedding cake, which the boys relished very much. They received a large number of presents, which were useful and beautiful. The PRESS extends congratulations and may they live as long as they like and have all they like as long as they live. XXX

THE LOVES of the LADY ARABELLA

By MOLLY ELLIOT SEAWELL

(Copyright, 1906, Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

At 14 years of age Admiral Sir Peter Hawkshaw's nephew, Richard Glyn, fell deeply in love at first sight with Lady Arabella Stormont, who spurned his attentions. The lad, an orphan, was given a berth as midshipman on the Ajax by his uncle. Giles Vernon, nephew of Sir Thomas Vernon, became the boy's pal. They attended a theater where Hawkshaw's nephew saw Lady Arabella. Vernon met Philip Overton, next in line for Sir Thomas Vernon's estate. They started a duel which was interrupted. Vernon, Overton and Hawkshaw's nephew found themselves attracted by pretty Lady Arabella. The Ajax in battle defeated French warships in the Mediterranean. Richard Glyn got £2,000 prize money. He was called home by Lady Hawkshaw as he was about to "blow in" his earnings with Vernon. At a Hawkshaw party Glyn discovered that Lady Arabella was a poor but persistent gambler. He talked much with her cousin Daphne. Lady Arabella again showed love for gaming. Later she held Glyn and Overton prisoners, thus delaying the duel. In the Overton-Vernon duel, neither was hurt. Lady Arabella humiliated Richard by her pranks. Richard and Giles shipped on a frigate. Giles was captured by the French. Sir Peter arranged for his exchange. Daphne showed a liking for Glyn, who was then 21 years of age. Giles was released. Giles and Richard planned elopements. Sir Peter objected to the plan to wed Daphne.

This made me hope that Sir Peter would not be present, for I thought our chances of getting off would materially improve if he were not on the spot.

The play was to be over at half-past ten, and it may be imagined that we had plenty to do until then. We engaged four of the best pairs of nags in the town. We arranged to pay the postboys according to the time they took us over the border, and we felt in ourselves the strength of Titans, to overcome whatever resistance might be offered. Of course we counted on the surprise, and we determined that the best disposition to make of Lady Hawkshaw was for Giles Vernon to appear suddenly, when the people were coming out, place Lady Hawkshaw in her coach, and then make that bold dash for love and beauty which we had determined upon. Our postboys, who were not new to the perils of elopements, grinned at the prospect, and were instructed to remain near Lady Hawkshaw's coach and impede it as much as possible, so that it might be the last to reach the door of the theater.

Our arrangements were complete by eight o'clock, and from that hour until ten we employed ourselves in disposing of a good supper at the tavern. We were in a gale of rapture then. It seemed to us both as if we were in that happy and exultant mood, when the enemy is within gun-shot and the ship is cleared for action; and we only awaited the signal for victory. We had some punch, but both Giles and myself knew enough to be exceedingly careful in attacking it.

"Dicky, my lad," cried Giles, banging me in the back, "this day is the anniversary of the day we whipped the Indomptable and the Xantippe!" and so it was. "So we shall capture the Indomptable, in the Lady Arabella, and we will disable the Xantippe—ha! ha!—in my Lady Hawkshaw."

This I thought a very fine joke indeed, and we drank to it.

"Dicky," began Giles again, wiping his mouth after the punch, "I never thought I could be constant to any woman, as I have been to Arabella. By heaven, the whole sex is so seductive that it was the last one I saw I loved the best. But since I knew that witch of a girl, St. Anthony himself could not be more impervious to female charms than your humble servant," which was true enough. "And as for Overton—that psalm-singing devil—I defy him. Give me but a week, and he shall see Arabella hanging upon me so fondly! Let him have her £20,000; 'tis so much dirt and dross to me. And she may be Lady Vernon yet. Do you know that old rapscallion Sir Thomas Vernon's estate is in this part of the country? Though nearer York than Scarborough. On our return from our honeymoon I have a great mind to take my Arabella to Vernon Court and show her what may one day be hers."

So he raved and roared out snatches like—

To Bacchus' joys I'll freely roll,
Pray no pleasure to my soul,
But Bacchus' health 'round freely move;
For Bacchus is the friend of love—
And he that will this toast deny,
Down among the dead men let him lie."

And I took up the chorus and howled it out;, for I, too, looked for no more crosses in this life, having Daphne for my wife.

So the time passed until ten o'clock; and at ten o'clock we sallied forth.

It was a starlit night in early December. The cold high blue heavens above us seemed to radiate happiness; the myriad stars twinkled with joy; we scarce felt the ground under our feet.

The two post-chaises awaited us on the highway, the postboys full of confidence; the horses, the best in the town, were eager to be off. We jumped together in one, and were whirled into the town, and were at the door of the playhouse almost before we knew it.

One of our postilions speedily found the coach which had brought Lady Hawkshaw there, and, in pursuance of his instructions, got the coachman off his box to drink in a neighboring tavern, while one of our postboys stood watch over the horses. Giles and I remained in the chaise until it was time for us to make our descent.

At half-past ten the play was over, and then began that hurry and commotion of the dispersion of a crowd in the darkness. We heard loud shouts for Lady Hawkshaw's coach, but the coachman did not make his appearance. There were many officers and ladies from the garrison, and a number of equipages; but soon they were driving off, while half a dozen men at once were shouting for Lady Hawkshaw's coach. At last my lady herself came out of the entrance, followed by Arabella and Daphne, and at that moment Giles slipped out of the chaise, and appeared before Lady Hawkshaw as if he had risen from the earth. I, too, was on the ground, but out of sight.

"Pray, my lady," said he, in his most gallant manner, and hat in hand, "allow me to show you to your coach."

"Mr. Vernon!" cried Lady Hawkshaw, in surprise. "I thought you were in London. How came you to Scarborough?"

"By chaise, madam," he replied, politely; "and I hope to see the young ladies before I leave" (the hypocrite!). "Is Sir Peter with you, madam?"

"No, he is not," replied Lady Hawkshaw, her wrath rising at the idea. "Had he been with me my coach would have been awaiting me." And then turning to Arabella and Daphne, who were behind her, she said, sternly:

"Arabella and Daphne, this does not happen again. Sir Peter comes with us to the play, after this."

I caught sight, from a corner behind the chaise, of my dear Daphne, at that moment. She stopped suddenly, and turned pale and then rosy, and glanced wildly about her. She knew I was not far off.

"Rather Would I Die Than Marry Him."

How Arabella received Giles' sudden appearance I never knew, as I could not see her. But in another moment he had placed Lady Hawkshaw, with the utmost obsequiousness, in the coach; then folding up the steps like magic, he slammed the door, and shouting to the coachman, "Drive on!" the coach rattled off, and the next moment his arm was around Arabella and mine was around Daphne, and they were swept off their feet; and in less time than it takes to tell it, each of us was with the idol of his heart, whirling off toward Gretna Green, as fast as four horses to a light chaise could take us.

Now, what think you, were Daphne's first words to me?

"Unhand me, Mr. Glyn, or I'll scream for assistance!"

"My dearest one!" I exclaimed, "you are now mine. By to-morrow morning we shall be over the border, and you will be my wife."

"An elopement! Gracious heaven! I never thought of such a thing!" she replied.

I might have answered that she had not only thought of such a thing, but talked of it. I refrained, however, knowing a woman's tongue to be capricious in its utterances, and, instead, assured her that my passion was such I could no longer bear the thought of existing without her.

"And do you mean to marry me, sir, without my guardian's consent?" she asked, with much violence.

"I do, indeed, my angel, and I thought it was agreed between us."

This was an unfortunate speech, and she again threatened to scream for assistance, but presently remarked that as there was none to come to her assistance, she would refrain. And then, having done what propriety required, she began to relent a little, and at last lay in my arms, asking me, with tears, if I would promise her never to love another, and I told her, with great sincerity, that I never would, provided I got out of that alive.

Deep in our own happiness—for at last the dear girl admitted that she was happy to be mine—we yet thought of Giles and Arabella, and I would have got out of the chaise at each of the three stages, where we made a rapid change of horses, except that Daphne would not let me—afraid, she said, lest I should be recognized and get into trouble. She afterward told me it was because she feared we might be stopped. We did not forget the precaution, in our brief halts, to pay the hostlers well to do some harm to any pursuing vehicles which might be after us; and our plan seemed to be prospering famously.

So all night we rattled furiously along, and at daybreak we crossed the border, notified by the huzzaing of the postboys. It was a dank, dismal morning, the weather having changed during the night, and we saw that we had passed the other chaise in the darkness. It was some distance behind, and the horses seemed much spent. We continued on our way to the house of a blacksmith at Gretna Green, who, so our postboys told us, usually united runaway couples. We dashed up to his cottage—a humble place, surrounded by a willow hedge—and he, warned by approaching wheels, came out, half dressed, in the murky morning.

"Come to be marrit?" he cried "Step out, then."

I assisted Daphne out of the chaise and then, as we stood on the damp ground, in those squalid surroundings looking at each other, the possible wrong I had done this innocent girl suddenly swept over me. And in her eyes, too, I read the first consciousness of having committed an impropriety. This dirty, unkempt blacksmith, the coarse, laughing postboys—this, a way to make the most solemn and spiritual of all engagements! I felt an uncomfortable sense of guilt and shame.

It was only momentary. The more depressed she, the more should I support, and therefore I called out cheerfully: "I take this woman to be my wedded wife," and such other words as I recalled of the marriage service—and I said it so heartily and promised so devoutly, removing my hat when I made my vows, that it heartened up Daphne—and her response, so full of faith and love, gave a kind of holiness to it all. We were two rash and foolish young people—but we loved each other truly, and we made our vows solemnly, determined to keep them. Perhaps that counts for more, in the eyes of God, than all else; at least, we realized the sacredness of our vows.

Scarcely was the brief ceremony over—for ceremony we made it—when the chaise containing Arabella and Giles drew up. And the sight I saw, I can never forget.

Arabella's face was quite pale, but her eyes were blazing. There were some drops of blood upon her cheek—they came from her wrists, which Giles held firmly. The door of the chaise being opened, she stepped out willingly, disdaining the assistance Giles offered her. His face, too, was very pale, and he looked and moved like a man in a nightmare. The blacksmith grinned broadly; he thought his gains were to be increased—for I had not forgotten to pay him handsomely.

Giles seized her hand. "Arabella," he cried, desperately, "surely you do not now mean to throw me over?"

For answer, she gave him a glance of ineffable hatred.

"This man," she said, turning to me, "you friend, your intimate—I blush for you—has dragged me here. Rather would I die than marry him. Look!" She held up her wrists, and they showed marks of violence.

"'Twas to keep her from jumping out of the chaise," said Giles, widly. "She would have had me leave her at midnight, on the highway—alone and unprotected. Dearest Arabella," he cried, turning to her, and trying to clasp her, "will you not listen to my prayer? How can you scorn such love as mine?" And he was near going down on his knees to her, in the mud—but I held him up. I confess that the most painful thing of all this painful business was Giles Vernon's complete surrender of his manhood, under the influence of his wild passion. He, an officer in his majesty's sea service, a man who had smelt powder and knew what it was to look Death in the eye and advance upon him, who would have answered with his life for his courage, was ready to grovel in the earth like a madman for the favor of a woman. Nothing was it to him that low-born creatures like the postboys and the blacksmith beheld him with contempt and disgust; nothing to him that a woman like Daphne, and that I, a brother officer, witnessed his degradation. He seemed to have parted with the last semblance of self-respect.

SHOULD HAVE KNOWN BETTER.

Fate of Unhappy Man Who Aroused Ire of Young Mother.

The baby in arms was screaming lustily and the man in the gray suit could not hide his irritability.

"What on earth, madam," he spluttered, "do you mean by bringing such a howling brat into a public vehicle?"

"It isn't a brat," retorted the mother, with natural indignation, "And, if I'm any judge, it doesn't howl half as much as you did at its age, going by the looks of you."

The man in gray wriggled uneasily under the general scrutiny.

"Baby, see the ugly man?" pursued the infuriated female, pointing at him. "See the monkey-ponkey, gorilla man, what might take a first prize at a beauty show for the horriblest face? Baby, hush, or the ugly monkey man will—"

But the sentence remained unfinished, for the man in the gray suit had bolted.

Pennsylvania Happenings

Pittsburg.—The United States Steel Corporation, it is now thought, will show a net profit of $28,000,000 for April, May and June.

Kittanning.—The recent birth of a daughter to Mrs. Aaron Ollinger of near here marked the 21st visit of the stork to the Ollinger home.

Canonsburg. — The Standard Tinplate Co. recently put into operation its entire plant, including four new mills, built in the last three months.

Pittsburg.—The largest flag in the world, unfurled July 5, pulled thousands of pounds of tile roofing from the court house. Many persons had narrow escapes from injury.

Altoona.—Orders for 500 steel box cars, 47 postal cars, 15 diners and eight baggage and express cars will benefit 1,500 Pennsylvania railroad employes here. Seventy-five suspended men were added to the car shop force, these being the first reinstated since the financial depression.

York.—"Satan has come into the schools of learning in the guise of professors and stolen the faith of scholars," said Rev. C. E. Wiles before the convention of the State Luther League, speaking in warning against rationalism, which, he said, had crept in and in part extinguished the faith of many Protestants. It was the boast of the Lutheran church, he declared, that in its institutions of learning no professor could be found who did not accept the extreme authority of the Bible.

Harrisburg.—Notices are being sent out by Secretary Kalbfus of the game commission, calling the attention of the wardens to the fact that, while the new law denying foreign-born residents the right to own firearms went into effect May 1, the commission desires to be fair in the matter and no prosecutions are to be brought against the foreigners until a reasonable time after the notices telling them of the law shall have been posted. These notices were delayed in printing and are only now being sent to all parts of the state. "Of course," said Dr. Kalbfus, "if men of foreign birth are caught hunting or shooting birds they should be prosecuted at once."

Harrisburg.—The new feeding stuffs law enacted by the last legislature will take effect the first day of August. This new law limits the amount of ground corn cobs and oat hulls that can be used in mixed feeds; prohibits the use of rice hulls, peanut hulls and weed seeds as adulterants in concentrated commercial feeding stuffs, and so makes it possible to free the markets of Pennsylvania from undesirable feeds. The co-operation of all manufacturers of and dealers in feeding stuffs, as well as the public press, is solicited in the effort to carry out the provisions of this ney law. Copies of the law will be sent to any persons making application to the department of agriculture.

Philadelphia.—In an effort to secure the consent of the United Mine Workers to a reduction in the wage scale in the central bituminous fields, the operators' committee, which recently petitioned President Lewis and the national board for a readjustment in District 2 met miners' representatives. The proposition laid before the miners was that upon showing that the central Pennsylvania coal field is producing coal at a cost per ton of from 20 cents to 40 cents greater than that at which it is at present being produced in other bituminous fields competing for tidewater markets, the miners agree to a reduction in the wage scale from 66 to 50 cents per ton for pick mined coal. It is understood a meeting of the mine workers' representatives will be held to discuss the request.

Plattsburg.—President Taft, as the guest of the New York and Vermont Champlain tercentenary commission, found himself the central figure in a series of events in connection with the celebration of the three-hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Champlain country. The president motored to Cliff Haven, half a mile from Bluff Point, where he addressed a large gathering at the Catholic summer school of America, returning later to the Hotel Champlain, where he received the foreign ambassadors. Govs. Hughes and Prouty, members of the New York state legislature and others of the guests. While this was going on the Indian pageants, which have proved an attractive feature of the celebration, were given on the floating island, which had been towed up from Fort Ticonderoga and anchored at the mouth of Saranac river.

Harrisburg.—Knocking down or defacing country sign boards is now a serious matter. Gov. Stuart recently signed the bill which makes the offense of removing or defacing index boards punishable by a fine of $25.

Harrisburg.—From present indications game this fall will be plentiful. Chief Game Protector Kalbfus has received word from all parts of the state which indicate that deer and bears will appear in unusually large numbers and turkeys and pheasants are said to be numerous.

Panhandle and South Plains Country.

The best land bargains today are found in the prosperous Southwest.

The Panhandle and South Plains region of northwest Texas offers good lands at the lowest prices in the Southwest.

You can't buy land there as cheaply this year as last, and it will cost more next year. So the time to buy is now.

I am not in the land business. The Santa Fe Railway employs me to help settle up the country along its lines. The service to you is absolutely free. I aim not to exaggerate. The truth about the Southwest is strong enough.

I consider the Panhandle and South Plains as unequaled for the man with small means. Likewise nothing better for the man with a big bank-roll. Both will prosper.

This country is no longer on the frontier. Thousands already have settled there. More are coming in on every train. You won't be lonesome, but you won't be crowded, either.

You ask what can be raised?

Beef, cereals, fruit—and other things.

The average rainfall is twenty-four inches, enough for raising crops without irrigation. The more brains you farm with, the bigger the yield. "Dry-farming" helps out some seasons.

I might talk on forever and not convince you half as much as by reproducing the testimony of Mr. W. M. Curfman, of Hereford, in the Texas Panhandle. He says:

"I came to Hereford four years ago and bought 640 acres of land nine miles southeast of town.

"Built me a house and broke about forty acres of land the first year. Sold $416 worth of produce off of same and had enough left to winter thirty-five head of cattle and horses. The second year had 120 acres in crop, and sold $802 worth of farm products and wintered forty-five head of stock. The fourth crop is not yet harvested, except the wheat and oats. The wheat and oats will bring me about $400, and expect to get about $1,000 out of the balance of the crop, besides wintering my stock.

"I now have 165 acres in cultivation. I raise wheat, oats, June corn, milo maize, kafir corn, sorghum, California wheat, millet and cotton, and all kinds of vegetables. I came here with $800 and could make my check out now for $4,500."

Mr. Curfman seems to be a satisfied man. You can do as well as he—perhaps better. May I help you get a home somewhere in this best of the few places in the United States where raw land may be bought for less than it is worth?

Disease Carried by the Fly.

Asiatic cholera, so fearful in its ravages, is among the fly's specialties; tuberculosis is another; every disease which begins or ends or endures in filth is his ally; and it has even been demonstrated that the fly carries and deposits, in active and virulent condition, the bacillus of the scourge before which the white man quails in sick and terrified loathing—leprosy.

The grand jury says: "We believe the same can be served at a cost not to exceed six cents."

Eighty years of single blessedness is the record of Moses P. Stowe, one of the oldest residents of Grafton, Mass. Not a woman crosses the threshold of his cozy home.

Why, look at all of the men in this country who have fastened themselves to women whom they professed to love, and now want to get as far away from femininity as they can. A Perfect Cure by Cuticura.

"When my little girl was six months old I noticed small red spots on her right cheek. They grew so large that I sent for the doctor but, instead of helping the eruption, his ointment seemed to make it worse. Then I went to a second doctor who said it was eczema. He also gave me an ointment which did not help either. The disease spread all over the face and the eyes began to swell. The itching grew intolerable and it was a terrible sight to see. I consulted doctors for months, but they were unable to cure the baby. I paid out from $20 to $30 without relief. One evening I began to use the Cuticura Remedies. The next morning the baby's face was all white instead of red. It continued until the eczema entirely disappeared. Mrs. P. E. Gumbin, Sheldon, Ia., July 13,'08."

FIRE IS THE GREATEST FOE OF OUR WOODLANDS

Often Kindled by Sparks from Railroad Locomotive and by Settlers and Farmers in Clearing Land or Burning Brush.

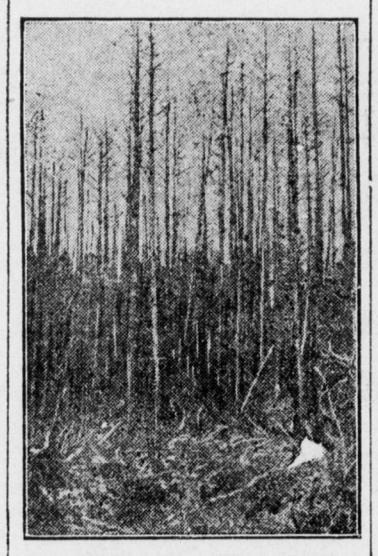
Of all the foes which attack the woodlands of North America no other is so terrible as fire. Forest fires spring from many different causes. They are often kindled along railroads by sparks from the locomotives. Carelessness is responsible for many fires. Settlers and farmers clearing land or burning grass and brush oftens allow the fire to escape into the woods. Some one may drop a half-burned match or the glowing tobacco of a pipe or cigar, or a hunter or prospector may neglect to extinguish his camp fire, or may build it where it will burrow into the thick duff far beyond his reach, to smolder for days, or weeks, and perhaps to break out as a destructive fire long after he is gone. Many fires are set for malice or revenge, and the forest is often burned over by huckleberry pickers to increase the next season's growth of berries, or by the owners of cattle or sheep to make better pasture for their herds.

Trunk Damaged by Fire.

There is danger from forest fires in the dry portions of the spring and summer, but those which do most harm usually occur in the fall. At whatever time of the year they appear, their destructive power depends very much on the wind. They cannot travel against it except when burning up hill, and not even then if the wind is strong. The wind may give them strength and speed by driving them swiftly through unburned, inflammable forests, or it may extinguish the fiercest fire in a time by turning it back over its path, where is nothing left to burn. In fighting forest fires the wind is always the first thing to consider, and its direction must be carefully watched. A sudden change of wind may check a fire, or may turn it off in a new direction and perhaps threaten the lives of the men at work by driving it suddenly down upon them.

When all the conditions are favorable, forest fires sometimes reach gigantic proportions. A few such fires have attained historic importance. One of these is the Miramichi fire of 1825. It began its greatest destruction about one o'clock in the afternoon of October 7 of that year, at a place about sixty miles above the town of Newcastle, on the Miramichi river, in New Brunswick. Before ten o'clock at night it was 20 miles below Newcastle. In nine hours it had destroyed a belt of forest 80 miles long and 25 miles wide. Over more than 2,500,000 acres almost every living thing was killed.

The Peshtigo fire of October, 1871, was still more severe than the Miramichi. It covered an area of over 2,000 square miles in Wisconsin, and involved a loss, in timber and other property, of many millions of dollars. Between 1,200 and 1,500 persons perished, including nearly half the population of Peshtigo.



Forest After Being Swept by Fire.

The most destructive fire of more recent years was that which started near Hinckley, Minn., September 1, 1894. While the area burned over was less than in some other great fires, the loss of life and property was very heavy. Hinckley and six other towns were destroyed, about 500 lives were lost, more than 2,000 persons were left destitute, and the estimated loss in property of various kinds was $25,000,000. Except for the heroic conduct of locomotive engineers and other railroad men the loss of life would have been far greater.

The means of fighting forest fires are not everywhere the same, for they burn in many different ways; but in every case the best time to fight a fire is at the beginning, before it has had time to spread. A delay of even a very few minutes may permit a fire that at first could easily have been extinguished to gather headway and get altogether beyond control.

When there is but a thin covering of leaves and other waste on the ground a fire usually cannot burn very hotly or move with much speed. The fires in most hardwood forests are of this kind. They seldom kill large trees, but they destroy seedlings and saplings and kill the bark of older trees in places near the ground. The hollows at the foot of old chestnuts and other large trees are often the results of these fires, which occur again and again, and so enlarge the wounds instead of allowing them to heal.

FARMER REGARDS WORK AS SCIENCE

Now Sends Sons and Daughters to the Best of Colleges.

Never in the history of agriculture has there been such a forward movemen on the part of the farmer and for the farmer on the part of state and nation, as is noted at the present time. Prosperity for the last decade has been the constant companion of the man who clothes and feeds the nation. All this good fortune that has fallen to the cause of agriculture has not come unmerited. Progress has been made all along the line in solving the various problems dealing with the tillage of the soil and the production of bountiful crops.

Educationally, the farmers are not so far behind their city cousins as one would naturally think, and if we take proportionate numbers into consideration, the farmers are ahead. The blessings of modern civilization and the advantage of up-to-date methods and labor-saving conveniences are enjoyed almost as generally by the country folk as by those living in the city.

It seems almost needless repetition to cite how, through the agency of the telephone, rural free delivery and interurban electric railway the former isolation of the farmer from the city has disappeared. All these modern developments have their influence on rural communities for the better. Each year the number of farmers' sons and daughters attending our higher institutions of learning is growing larger. Educational statistics, we are told, disclose that the proportion of farm-reared students found in the colleges and universities is larger than that of students coming from other walks of life, either from the wealthy or working classes.

There is a very good reason for the presence of the farmer's son and daughter in the halls of learning. Agricultural education has become the favorite theme with the wide-awake farmer and his family, and as a result those institutions are being patronized almost to overflowing by students eager to make farming their life work. New conditions must be met in our progressive age, such as the remarkable increase of our population and an ever-increasing demand for farm products at high prices; the rush of so many country people to live in the city, impelled by the erroneous thought that farm life is debasing, and that urban existence is more attractive than the monotony of the farm.

Feed for Pigs.

I have been forced to depend upon my farm for my pork and have learned that plenty of rutabaga turnips, clover and one bag of corn will put a hog through the winter; then put to pasture till fall. WHEN YOUR BACK ACHES

It Is a Warning That the Kidneys Are Sick and Need Help.

A bad back makes every day a dull round of pain and misery. It's a sign the kidneys are sick and cannot keep up their never-ending task of filtering the blood. Lame back, backache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders are warnings that must not be overlooked. A. G. Smith, 405 E. Mills St., Liberty, Mo., says: "I was racked with pain, stiff and lame, had dizzy spells and a terrible condition of the kidney secretions. I got so miserable I went to bed, but the doctor did not do anything for me and no one expected me to recover. Doan's Kidney Pills first relieved, then cured me, and I have had no kidney trouble for seven years since."

If you have mysterious pains, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Bad BLOOD

"Before I began using Cascarets I had a bad complexion, pimples on my face, and my food was not digested as it should have been. Now I am entirely well, and the pimples have all disappeared from my face. I can truthfully say that Cascarets are just as advertised; I have taken only two boxes of them."

Clarence R. Griffin, Sheridan, Ind.
